In 2008, a design team comprised of various members from each of the New Mexico Tribes the Indian Health Services gathered to design four handouts to be distributed to tribal CHRs and other local service providers. This interactive “Train the Trainer” workshop teaches you to use the handouts so your community is prepared in the event of a pandemic flu or other type of large-scale public health emergency.

Who should attend?

Tribal CHR's, DPP, Emergency Management personnel, Housing entities, teachers, Elderly services staff, and anyone else who works directly with community members
